APPENDIX A

AVOIDING FALSE ALLEGATIONS OF SEXUAL MISCONDUCT

The following common sense tips are presented as steps that can be taken by teachers, employees and volunteers, to reduce their exposure to such allegations:

1. Be aware that under the Student Protection Act, 2002, the definition of sexual abuse is defined as:
 - a) sexual intercourse or other forms of physical sexual relations between the member and the student;
 - b) touching of a sexual nature of the student by a member; or
 - c) behaviour or remarks of a sexual nature by the member towards a student.
2. Know your students and their stage of maturity. They may have adult features, but they are still impressionable.
3. Do not cover windows in your office or classroom.
4. Avoid closing the classroom door, especially in “one-on-one” situations.
5. Place your desk so that your activity behind the desk can be seen from the entrance to the room.
6. Avoid after-hours meetings with students, especially “one-on-one” situations.
7. When a meeting with a student is necessary, conduct it in a public area, or have a second teacher or staff member present for the meeting.
8. Avoid situations where you are behind partitions, barriers or in concealed/secluded rooms or areas of the school with only one student.
9. Be conscious of physical demonstrations of caring and affection toward students. Use discretion in choosing appropriate means of expressing these emotions. If you feel these gestures are necessary, save them for when you are in public view of teachers and other students.
10. Beware of signs of infatuation or hints of students being attracted to you. Discourage any flattery or unusual attention. This is a major “red flag” that can place you at risk.
11. Avoid inviting students to your home or cottage for un-chaperoned or overnight visits, or on private trips or vacations. This is also a major “red flag” that can place you at risk.
